

RUSSIAN
LOSS
ADMIT

Official Reports of the Engagement at Vafangow May Send These Figures Higher as Result of the Several Days' Fighting.

FIRST DETAILED STORY OF THE DESPERATE STRUGGLE

Russian Correspondent, Who Witnessed Battle, Writes That Czar's Troops Added a Page of Glory to Their Country's History.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 17.—(Dispatches from Liao-Yang admit the Russian loss at Vafangow is at least 1000 men and 20 cannons. Official reports may increase these figures.

Gen. Kurapatkin has sent the following report to the czar:

"I have received the following dispatch from Lieutenant-General Baron Stakelberg, dated June 16, 12:30 a. m.:

"Yesterday I had intended to attack the enemy's right flank, but just as our troops had been assigned for the purpose and were beginning to successfully envelop the enemy's right flank, the Japanese, in their turn, attacked my right flank with superior forces and I was compelled to retreat by three routes to the north.

"Our losses are heavy, but they are not completely known.

"During the engagement the Third and Fourth batteries of the First Artillery brigade were literally cut to pieces by the Japanese shells.

"Of sixteen guns, thirteen were rendered completely useless and were abandoned.

"The conduct of the troops was excellent, a large proportion of them refusing to retire until after they had been repeatedly ordered to do so."

FIRST DETAILED STORY OF VAFANGOW BATTLE BY CORRESPONDENT ON SCENE

LIAO-YANG, June 17.—A correspondent of the Associated Press, who was present at the battle of Vafangow, describes the fighting as follows:

"The stern, dogged fighting at the battle of Vafangow was like another Bredino. The roar of the machine guns and the boom of the cannon still ring in one's ears.

"Throughout the three days of combat the officers and men vie with each other in pluck and heroism. They have added a glorious page to Russia's military history.

"The enemy's advance originally included the Fifth, Eighth and Eleventh divisions, 12 squadrons of cavalry and splendid artillery. About 200 guns were belching a continuous stream of shot and shell. Large reinforcements enabled them to turn the Russian flank. A diversion on the left precipitated the battle in the morning of June 15.

"Major-General Gerngross, who was wounded, commanded the left. General Louchevsky commanded the center, including four battalions concealed in a small wood, whence they dealt death and destruction on the enemy.

"While these big guns were thundering I made my way about 11 o'clock. I saw Russian right flank and climbed a hill whence I could view the whole field of battle. Behind me a battery had taken up a position from which it kept up a continuous fire upon the advancing ranks of the enemy.

"Through glasses I could see the sandy valley of the river, with the Chinese village of Fafan. The heights of Poo-Chou, the railroad bridge and the surrounding hills were occupied by Japanese infantry. These black lines of infantry, like threads, followed the river and the valley. Near the slope of a hill was dotted by the gray shirts of Russian riflemen. A brownish smoke overhung some of the batteries and others showed flashes of flames. The crackle of rifle fire was punctuated by the roar of guns. Occasionally I heard the hiss of a Japanese bullet.

"Chocolate Clouds From the Bursting Shrapnel.

"The scene was awe-inspiring. Over the Russian center and left flank hovered chocolate clouds from bursting shrapnel. It was evident that the battle was coming toward the Russian right. I saw reserves hurrying forward, the Cosacks rallying, followed by columns of infantry at the double. Suddenly they disappeared in an adjacent ravine.

"The valley where the Russians had camped was emptied as if by magic. Rattling volleys were heard from the screen of hills which concealed the enemy's troops from view in that direction, the sound of the firing being the only evidence of the deadly struggle proceeding there. This continued for an hour.

"Suddenly a company of Cosacks appeared on the crest of a hill and began to descend. They were followed by many. The Japanese gunners promptly poured a hail of shrapnel. Horses and men began falling.

"It was from a couple of thousand of Russian troops. Just brought up by train, they quickly jumped from the cars, fixed bayonets and ran into the fight.

"Again the crackle of musketry under cover, during which the retreating Russian battalions turned up and moved on in complete order toward the railroad. While the line of Cosacks was moving forward, Cosacks took to the road, a battery of some artillery stationed near the railroad, and the Japanese shells were hurled on the Russian buildings, from which they were driven away.

LOTTERY CASES
GIVEN NEW TURN

Indictments Against Nathan and August Frank Dismissed, Informations Taking Their Place.

LOWENSTEIN OUT OF CASE

Court Finds That He Was Not Connected With the Star's Guessing Contest.

Judge Daniel Taylor, in the criminal division of the circuit court Friday morning sustained the demurrer, submitted by the defense, to two of the three indictments returned by the grand jury recently against Nathan Frank, owner, and August Frank, business manager, of the St. Louis Star.

The indictments were the result of a guessing contest on the recorded admissions to the World's Fair on opening day, conducted under the auspices of the newspaper mentioned.

Indictment No. 1 was quashed on the ground that it failed to state that "defendants had conducted the chance, contest or lottery as a business or avocation."

Indictment No. 2 was quashed on the ground that the language of the advertisement of the contest was in no sense a violation of the Missouri laws prohibiting lotteries.

In the case of indictment No. 3, which characterized the guessing contest as a lottery and accused the defendants of operating it, Judge Taylor stated that he would defer a decision until July 8.

In place of the defendants, Assistant Circuit Attorney Hancock filed informations, but these will not receive consideration until Judge Taylor has disposed of indictment No. 3.

The three indictments against M. J. Lowenstein, former business manager of the Star, were dismissed by the state, as it was shown that Mr. Lowenstein was not connected with the Star at the time of the alleged lottery. No information was filed against Mr. Lowenstein, and he is exonerated.

The vital question under consideration by Judge Taylor now is this:

Was the guessing contest merely a gift enterprise or a lottery, within the meaning of the law?

C. O. Bishop, assistant to Circuit Attorney Folk, in making his argument in behalf of the state, declared to the court that he had not time to go into the merits of the case.

"If the defendants conducted a lottery," said Mr. Bishop, "then they should be held amenable under the state law. If, on the other hand, the guessing contest was merely a gift enterprise, the presumption of the contention of the defense holds good. However, if I have stated here have not had opportunity to fully examine authorities on this subject."

Mr. Bishop's remarks occupied only a few minutes.

Charles H. Krum, attorney for the defense, characterized the lottery for the defense as "ridiculous and absurd," and said: "Any person who would charge the advertisement of this guessing contest is similar to that of a lottery is simply a lunatic."

Local members of the order anticipated with some apprehension the coming of the fair. The fair is considered to be the logical candidate for the presidency, and it was feared that her coming might inject a little politics into the World's Fair.

Daughters of the American Revolution are accustomed to very spirited politics. It seems, and they plan and pull wires and practice the art of vote-getting with an ingeniousness that is no discredit to their appreciation of the office of president, any day.

It has been known for long that Mrs. Manning would like to be president of the ultra-aristocratic order. It has been known, too, that her friends were "for" her. When she was elected, it was a half-hearted loyalty such as men exhibit toward one another, but it is in earnest.

Campaign Is Warming Up.

This was what concerned the local members of the order when they heard that Mrs. Manning was coming here. The election will not occur until next March, but the campaigning began long ago, and it is something more than a warm-up, strictly time. Just now there are in St. Louis so many "Manning" men, that it is almost impossible to find a man who is not a "Manning" man.

It has been known for long that Mrs. Manning would like to be president of the ultra-aristocratic order. It has been known, too, that her friends were "for" her. When she was elected, it was a half-hearted loyalty such as men exhibit toward one another, but it is in earnest.

PRESIDENT COMING
AFTER THE ELECTION

Defers Visit to Fair Because He Doesn't Wish to Make Speeches During Campaign.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—A prominent official, who was with the President for a short time yesterday, is responsible for the statement that President Roosevelt will visit the World's Fair immediately after the election in November. The President has been urged frequently to visit the fair, but has steadily refused, as he says it would be impossible to go there and not make speeches, and he has announced that he will make no political speeches until after the election.

MAYBE SHOWERS, WARMER

Weather Bureau Sees Unsettled Condition on the Horizon for Next Twenty-Four Hours.

More summer-like weather prevailed throughout the country, west and northwest of the lake region and St. Louis is due for a share of it. The temperatures, however, do not threaten to become unpleasantly high.

Chance showers still threaten, and may fall tonight.

The forecast:

"Partly cloudy with showers tonight and Saturday; somewhat warmer; variable winds becoming fresh; rain or showers on Sunday and Sunday night. The stage of the river was 25.3 this morning and a gradual fall is predicted."

BEER BUCKET BRINGS BULLET.

Saloon Keeper Is Charged With Shooting His Customer.

Chris Dolde, aged 35, of 313 Pennsylvania avenue, is at the City Hospital dangerously wounded, and Fred Weiser, a saloon keeper of 404 South Grand avenue, is under arrest, charged with shooting him Friday afternoon during a quarrel over the amount of beer in a bucket belonging to Dolde.

"It's not enough," said Dolde, when he saw how much beer had been given him.

"It's too much," contended Weiser.

The argument led to a quarrel which ended with Dolde being shot with the revolver in his hand. He was placed under arrest.

SCHOOL FENCE DELAYED.

The Madison school picnic, which was to have been given Saturday, has been postponed to June 24, when it will be given in a park.

MRS. MCLEAN HEADS
OFF MRS. MANNING

Boom of the President of Lady Managers for the D. A. R. Presidency Suffers Eclipse.

VISITING CANDIDATE ACTIVE

Honors Showered on the Visitor Significant in Daughters of Revolution Politics.

The prospect that Mrs. Daniel Manning, president of the Board of Lady Managers at the Fair, may be the next president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is becoming very remote. If one may judge by the way in which Mrs. Donald McClean, who is also a candidate for the office, is making prestige in St. Louis this week.

Mrs. McClean, like Mrs. Manning, is from New York. She is here this week as the guest of Mrs. William H. Thompson, and in manner in which people are going out of their way to do her honor is significant.

Mrs. Manning has suffered a partial and in some instance almost a total eclipse in D. A. R. matters ever since Mrs. McClean came to the Fair. Last night, for instance, at a reception at the Missouri Building, Mrs. McClean was made the recipient of an honor at the hands of Mrs. Holt, one of the hostesses of the Texas Building, who presented her with a bouquet and the compliments of the Lone Star State.

Local members of the order anticipated with some apprehension the coming of the fair. The fair is considered to be the logical candidate for the presidency, and it was feared that her coming might inject a little politics into the World's Fair.

WIFE COWHIDED
TRUANT HUSBAND

Mrs. Lena Keller Found Him in Saloon and Applies Whip—Is Fined.

"I've found you. Come out here," exclaimed Mrs. Lena Keller of Belleville Friday morning when she discovered her husband in a Macaulay avenue saloon after a three days' search.

Keller obeyed. Then Mrs. Keller took a horsewhip from her husband's carriage and thrashed him until he begged for mercy.

When the thrashing was completed, Mrs. Keller went to her home, on South Race street, while Keller went to the police station and swore out a warrant for his wife's arrest.

When brought before Justice Bedel, Mrs. Keller said: "Three days ago I gave him $50 to buy me a pair of slippers, and he did not bring them. I have been hunting for him ever since."

The marks of his wife's skill with a whip were visible on his back.

Justice Bedel fined Mrs. Keller $5 and costs.

ELEVATOR CRAZES INDIANS

Two Sioux Warriors Become Frightened in Wireless Telegraph Tower and Terrify Passengers.

Post-Dispatch Wire Bureau, by De Forest Wireless Telegraph.

Locked in an elevator 30 feet in the air with two yelling Sioux braves in their way was the experience of six visitors to the De Forest Wireless Telegraph tower Friday morning.

The Indians, all crazed by the buzzing of the instruments which were sending messages to the Post-Dispatch, wanted to get out of the tower and were invited to make the ascent. Led by real Indian curiosity, they accepted and were soon climbing away from the earth at a speed which they could not control.

As they looked from the elevator across the fair and saw it sinking from the earth, they set out yell after yell which echoed over the tower and drowned the buzzing of the wireless messages. Between yells they struck their heads against the sides of the elevator and were invited to make the ascent. Led by real Indian curiosity, they accepted and were soon climbing away from the earth at a speed which they could not control.

FATHER IS TRACED
BY CHILD'S LETTER

George K. Lyon, Who Took Daughter From Divorced Wife, Surrenders at Waco, Tex.

George K. Lyon, against whom an indictment was returned by the grand jury Thursday in connection with the disappearance of his daughter Lamar, aged 3, has voluntarily surrendered to Chief of Police William H. Harrison at Chicago, after the past few days. He is now being held pending extradition proceedings.

Lyon declares the child is not with him. He states that he did not abduct his daughter, but that she had run away from him. He says that he had a right to do so. The child did not return and finally Mrs. Lyon was divorced at San Antonio, Tex.

The indictment against Lyon, returned Thursday, charged that the little girl was taken from the Planters' Hotel with her mother's consent, but against her own wishes, to seek a new home with her father. Mrs. Lyon and her daughter had been staying at the Planters' Hotel. The child did not return and finally Mrs. Lyon was divorced at San Antonio, Tex.

DIVER DROWNS, STUCK IN MUD.

John Young Made Running Jump and Didn't Reappear.

John Young, colored, aged 28, was drowned while swimming in a pond at the rear of the East St. Louis gas works Thursday afternoon. The incident was held Friday morning and a verdict of drowning was returned.

Charles Buck and George Smith, who were with Young stated that Young had made a long run and dived into the pond. They waited for him to come to the surface and when he did not they became alarmed and ran for assistance. In the meantime an unknown man dived down and found Young's body with the head sticking in the mud.

Four Young's body with the head sticking in the mud.

To the other persons in the elevator the ascent was almost as terrifying as to the Indians. The braves, both brassy fellows, the cage like wild animals, yelling and running. They were in great haste to get out of the elevator for the descent.

TWO PERSONS MISSING.

Carl Schaefer is missing from his home, 323 South Second street. He is 31 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, has brown hair, gray eyes, gray hair and beard and wears a black plush cap, brown pants and black shoes.

William Myers, 12 years old, is missing from his home, 1212 North Grand street. He is 12 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, has brown hair, gray eyes, gray hair and beard and wears a black plush cap, brown pants and black shoes.

UNION FOR GOSPEL MEETINGS.

A ministerial meeting is being held this afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. to bring about the cooperation of all churches in union evangelistic services at the Christian Endeavor Hotel auditorium, under the leadership of Charles N. Crittenton. The services are to begin at 7:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon and will be held every night thereafter, except Saturday.

EXPECT BRYAN
TO SPRING FOLK
CONVENTION

Nebraskan Believed to Be Cherishing Plan to Electrify Democratic Gathering With Another "Cross of Gold" Outburst for Boodle Prosecutor.

BOURKE COCKRAN COULD SWING THE EAST TO HIM

Despite Mr. Folk's Protestations to the Contrary, Observers See the Plan Seriously on Foot—Would Mean Reinstatement for Bryan.

Another "crown of thorns and cross of gold" speech, with William J. Bryan as speaker and Joseph W. Folk as theme, is confidently looked for as a feature of the coming Democratic national convention by politicians who know of the conference held by Mr. Folk and Mr. Bryan at the Jefferson Hotel yesterday.

The object of the anticipated oratorical outburst is to stampede the convention to Folk, making him, with or without his previous consent, the party's candidate for the presidency.

To add strength to the plea for the nomination of Folk, it is expected, according to eastern dispatches, that W. Bourke Cockran will also make a speech in Folk's behalf. This, it is believed, would have the effect of drawing the East into line for the Missouri boodle prosecutor.

The movement to nominate Folk, which has twice before taken form, is now given new strength by the growth of the belief that Judge Parker's nomination could be effected only with hazardous result, threatening to divide the party, and that none of his opponents is strong enough to secure the nomination.

Cockran has been outspoken in his praise of Folk on the floor of the House of Representatives. Norman E. Mack and William J. Bryan, the two principal leaders of the Parker campaign in New York, in recent visits to St. Louis, have consulted with Mr. Folk, and the former has offered him the temporary chairmanship of the Missouri Democratic convention.

At the first gathering of committee men held in St. Louis since the place for holding the convention was fixed, many expressions favorable to the nomination of Mr. Folk for the vice-presidency were made.

Mr. Folk said at that time that he was a devoted son of the Democratic party, and that his duty and his promises to the people of the state required him to support the nomination of Bryan. He has repeated this declaration emphatically since the Parker campaign began. He has said that he believed the nomination of Bryan was the only way to secure the party's success.

With Bryan nominating and Cockran seconding, the order reversed, the movement of politicians toward him, Mr. Folk's nomination is now being seriously suggested for nomination in the alternate of a deadlock or a threatened bolt.

One reason advanced for Bryan's expected action is that with such a plan carrying Bryan would find a ready-made base in the bosom of the whole party. It is not an active occupant of the saddle, silver and horse, but a ready-made base in the bosom of the whole party. Mr. Folk said at that time that he was a devoted son of the Democratic party, and that his duty and his promises to the people of the state required him to support the nomination of Bryan. He has repeated this declaration emphatically since the Parker campaign began. He has said that he believed the nomination of Bryan was the only way to secure the party's success.

With Bryan nominating and Cockran seconding, the order reversed, the movement of politicians toward him, Mr. Folk's nomination is now being seriously suggested for nomination in the alternate of a deadlock or a threatened bolt.

One reason advanced for Bryan's expected action is that with such a plan carrying Bryan would find a ready-made base in the bosom of the whole party. It is not an active occupant of the saddle, silver and horse, but a ready-made base in the bosom of the whole party. It is not an active occupant of the saddle, silver and horse, but a ready-made base in the bosom of the whole party.

IS NO CRIME TO STEAL
FOR HUNGRY CHILDREN

City Attorney Believes Pitiful Story of Want, Needy Family, First Theft of Father, and Refuses to Issue Warrant.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John D. Dalton refused absolutely this morning to issue a warrant for petit larceny against Thomas Gutland, who stole two loaves of bread for his starving family.

Gutland lives at 234 Menard street. He has a wife and four children. They have been unfortunate, and just when there was illness in the house the father lost his job. There was not a bite of anything in the house.

Last night Gutland went to a bread box placed in front of 1044 Russell avenue, by the Heydt Bakery Co., and stole two loaves of bread, which he took home to his hungry wife and children.

This morning he was arrested, and application was made for a warrant against him. Mr. Dalton refused it.

The refusal was made after hearing the man's story. Gutland said the theft was the first he had ever made.

"I have been an honest man," he said. "I did not think I would ever steal. But when some of the members of my family became sick, and when there was not a crumb of bread in the house, I began to get desperate."

Last night the children cried for food. Their pleadings drove me out of the house. I saw the bread box. Bread was what we wanted. It was what the children were crying for. We had been without any food for three days. There was not a bite of anything in the house.

Two loaves out of the box. I ran home with them and the children stuffed it into their mouths. They were so hungry. They were starving. I thought I might be arrested, but I couldn't help it. I know I was wrong, but I couldn't help it. I was what the children were crying for. We had been without any food for three days. There was not a bite of anything in the house.

EXPOSITION COMPANY
STANDS ON "FROM"

"From July 1" and "On July 1" Are Entirely Different Matters, They Say.

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition company will not pay the national government an installment of $50,000 on the fairgrounds at Kansas City, Mo., until July 1.

At least the company will not do so voluntarily.

They have a brand new interpretation of the terms of the grant. These terms provide for a payment of 40 per cent upon gross receipts June 15, and for semi-monthly payments of $50,000 "from and after July 1."

The Exposition company puts its position to the proposition "from." Speaking of the matter to the Post-Dispatch this morning, one of the officials of the company said that had the law read "on and after July 1" the company would not expect to go any further. But the law reads "from and after July 1," and that is the key word in the law as meaning that after July 1 the payments of $50,000 every 15 days must begin. That is the company's interpretation. That is the company's interpretation. That is the company's interpretation.

This is a very close splitting of phrases. The company says they are all agreed in interpretation, and they will submit only another 40 per cent payment July 1 unless compelled to accept the other interpretation of the law.

DIVER DROWNS, STUCK IN MUD.

John Young, colored, aged 28, was drowned while swimming in a pond at the rear of the East St. Louis gas works Thursday afternoon. The incident was held Friday morning and a verdict of drowning was returned.

Charles Buck and George Smith, who were with Young stated that Young had made a long run and dived into the pond. They waited for him to come to the surface and when he did not they became alarmed and ran for assistance. In the meantime an unknown man dived down and found Young's body with the head sticking in the mud.

Four Young's body with the head sticking in the mud.

To the other persons in the elevator the ascent was almost as terrifying as to the Indians. The braves, both brassy fellows, the cage like wild animals, yelling and running. They were in great haste to get out of the elevator for the descent.

TWO PERSONS MISSING.

Carl Schaefer is missing from his home, 323 South Second street. He is 31 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, has brown hair, gray eyes, gray hair and beard and wears a black plush cap, brown pants and black shoes.

William Myers, 12 years old, is missing from his home, 1212 North Grand street. He is 12 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, has brown hair, gray eyes, gray hair and beard and wears a black plush cap, brown pants and black shoes.

The BEST HOT WEATHER MEDICINE

PREVENT ALL SUMMER BOWEL TROUBLES

Undigested food in the human body will ferment a hundred times as quickly in summer as in winter. Consequence—stomach, liver, bowels poisoned, thrown out of order; sour stomach, gases, colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera, appendicitis, and in some regions yellow fever and the plague. Little children suffer terribly everywhere. The proper thing is to send all impure and unnecessary matter out of the body every day—not give it a chance to sour in the stomach and bowels. You will stop hot, feverish conditions and keep your insides cool and healthy. To do it, use a medicine that is pleasant to the taste and not harsh and violent in its action. The only safe system-cleaner to take in summer, because it will not cause diarrhoea or griping, is Cascarets. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C.C.C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. Sample and booklet free. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

RED CROSS SOCIETY IS REORGANIZED

Mrs. Logan and Officers Resign in Interests of Harmony—Olney Plan Adopted.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—By the harmonious action of the opposing factions of the American Red Cross in electing an entire new set of officers it is believed the troubles of the society have been adjusted satisfactorily. Formerly Surgeon-General W. K. Van Ruyven of the navy is the new president and Dr. Walter Wyman, surgeon-general of the public health and marine hospital service, is vice-president. The reorganization was made easy by the resignations of members of the board of trustees and other officers. The only officers who did not resign were Gen. Nelson A. Miles, E. B. Pike of Connecticut and S. M. Jarvin of New York.

The report of Richard Olney and former Secretary of State John W. Foster, nominating new officers and trustees was read and adopted. This names W. K. Van Ruyven of Washington as president and the following as members of the board of trustees: Surgeon-General Walter Wyman, Charles J. Bell, Admiral Dewey, C. C. Glover, S. D. Hoge, Gen. J. M. Wilson, all of this city; Dr. J. Wilkes O'Neil of Philadelphia; Senator Proctor of Vermont and Representative William Alden Smith of Michigan.

The report of the nominating committee included the names of F. B. Pike of Connecticut and Gen. Nelson A. Miles as members of the board, and as soon as their resignations from the old board are accepted they will be re-elected to the new board.

The appointment of a special committee was authorized to adopt resolutions in recognition of Clara Barton, the former president of the society.

The new board convened at once for the purpose of electing officers and naming an executive committee. The board filled the vacancies as follows: Vice-President, Dr. Walter Wyman, Washington; Counselor, Richard Olney, Massachusetts; Secretary, J. W. Crawford of Washington, D. C.; Treasurer, W. J. Flather, Washington; Executive committee—Admiral Dewey, Dr. Wyman, Gen. Miles, Dr. O'Neil and Mr. Hoge.

WILL DEFY CHICAGO DRIVERS.

Employers' Association Moves to Bring on Fight Next May.

CHICAGO, June 17.—The Employers' Association of Chicago has set May 17, 1905, as the date for a general contest with the teamsters' union. A resolution carrying this decision, recently passed by the executive board, has just been made public. The organization in the meanwhile will prepare for the struggle. The resolution follows: "Resolved, That this resolution instructs its members to refuse to sign any exclusive union or 'closed shop' contracts with any local of the teamsters' union, and that no contract of any sort be signed with them which shall extend beyond or expire after May 17, 1905."

Ever since the association has been its chief stumbling block. Owing to its strategic position, the drivers have been able to force "closed shop" agreements in almost every case. They have also secured repeated wage increases.

The loss amounts to many thousands of dollars, with little insurance.

According to the figures of Supply Commissioner John P. Joyce, the saving of $12,500 will be saved the city by getting a Chicago meat packing concern into competition to furnish the city institutions with meat during the next three months. The contracts were awarded to Schwarzschild and Sulzberger at prices much lower than the local firms bid. Under the contract nearly a quarter of a million pounds of meat will be sold the city. The contract for fish was awarded to the St. Louis Packing Co., H. G. Haug and J. P. Holden.

The Best Test For Butter

The "everyday test" is the best test for butter, and only a small proportion of the butter marketed, stands it. It is hard to maintain uniform excellence week after week, from one year's end to another.

Butter that never varies in quality, that always has the same delicious flavor, is a good brand to insist on having—when you find it. If all butter was like this, there would be no need for butter testers.

All we ask for Meadow Gold Butter, is that you taste it. As one housewife remarked "it always has a 'more-ish' taste that brings one back for another package." Ask your dealer for it. Sold only in airtight packages.

RICH BOOTY SECURED FROM WRECKED EXPRESS SAFE

Engineer Is Forced to Smoke Cigar by Bandits That They Might Have Handy Light for Dynamite—He Also Explodes Charge.

BEAR MOUTH, Mont., June 17.—At 11 o'clock last night two masked men robbed the Northern Pacific passenger train, eastbound, at a mile and a half east of this station. After bringing the train to a stop they dynamited the express car, blew open the safe and secured all of its contents. The amount recovered is not known, but is believed to be large. After blowing open the rear lights of the train the two men disappeared and have not been seen since.

The robbery was similar to the one which occurred two years ago in nearly the same spot, and in which Engineer O'Neil lost his life.

The robbers boarded the engine tender at the water tank at Bear Mouth and remained quiet until the train had gone a mile and a half. Then they crawled up over the coal and covered Engineer Wade and Fireman Reed with their guns. Engineer Wade was ordered to bring his train to a standstill, and complied. The engineer and fireman were ordered from the engine, and accompanied by the robbers, went back to the express car. Before making an effort to gain an entrance they forced the engineer to light a cigar. The express messenger was commanded to open the door, but refused.

Engineer Wade was forced to place a lighted stick of dynamite against the car door, and the engineer and fireman were compelled to precede the robbers into the car.

Express Car Blown to Pieces.

Five sticks of dynamite were placed on top of the safe and ignited. The force of the charge was insignificant, and another and larger quantity was used. The second charge tore out the side of the car and threw the safe a distance of 40 feet. The robbers were terror-stricken and fled. The train crew remained quiet and no harm would be done them. While this conversation was going on, one of the robbers accidentally struck the engineer with the revolver, and in apologizing called him by name.

The men then passed to the rear of the train, and after putting out the rear lights of the train disappeared in the darkness. The robbers were terror-stricken and fled. The train crew remained quiet and no harm would be done them. While this conversation was going on, one of the robbers accidentally struck the engineer with the revolver, and in apologizing called him by name.

ASSASSIN'S WOUND FATAL TO BOBRIKOFF

Russian Literary Man Gives Out Interview in Which Governor Blamed Swedomania.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, June 17.—Gen. Bobrikoff, governor-general of Finland, who was shot yesterday morning at the Finnish capital, died at 1 o'clock this morning. The people are calm, and there is no excitement.

What may be regarded as Gen. Bobrikoff's dying declaration concerning the conditions in Finland, is contained in an interesting statement made to M. Belacoff, a Russian literary man, who has just completed a tour of the country, and who had a long talk with the late governor-general Tuesday.

Bobrikoff regarded the present situation very auspiciously, expressing satisfaction. He said, however, that because of the state of affairs, and were manifesting correct relations toward the Russian administration. He continued:

"The trouble is all with the Swedes. Swedomania is still a very strong propaganda and is pushed in the most underhanded and disreputable fashion. In order to win people's minds, the Swedes are showered from Sweden. We sense what we can do to form a chapter of our syndicate, wherever we are, and other groups. My sympathies are on the side of the old Finns, who form the majority of the population. I believe in them. The majority of the senate is composed of old Finns. I select them to prefer them to the Swedes, hence the hostility of the latter."

Helmsingfors gives me no rest night or day. The city is a hotbed of dissension. It is automatically split into two camps, the rivalry and hostility between the parties. I repeat that I rely mostly on the old Finns. The young Finns and the Swedes are much the same, the only difference being that the former are more ardently than the latter. The Socialist party, of which the young Finns are the heart and soul, is a cunning time-serving organization.

The conscription this year passed off quietly. Only a small percentage proved unamiable. The Swedish proclamations are having little effect, the conscripts themselves bringing them to us in bundles."

BOY MURDERERS NOT TO HANG.

Gov. Yates Commutes Two Sentences and Grants Reprieve.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 17.—The triple hanging that was expected to take place in Chicago today will not occur. The two boys of the trio will not be hanged at all; their death sentences having been commuted to life imprisonment, while Frank Lewandowski, the third murderer, was granted a reprieve until Aug. 26.

James Samons and John Lynch, the two boys who murdered a Chicago saloonkeeper while robbing the place, had their sentences commuted by Gov. Yates, because of their youth.

Lewandowski's reprieve was granted to give him an opportunity to get his case before the supreme court, where an application will be made for a writ of habeas corpus. This probably will be denied and Lewandowski will then ask for executive clemency from the state board of pardons. Lewandowski murdered his wife because she failed to have his supper ready on time.

D. O. C. WINS ITS PROTEST.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 17.—After considerable discussion on the part of the members of the board of education, McMaster's letter of the United States has been dropped from the Kansas City school list.

This is the work against which the Daughters of the Confederacy lodged their protest before the board about a month ago.

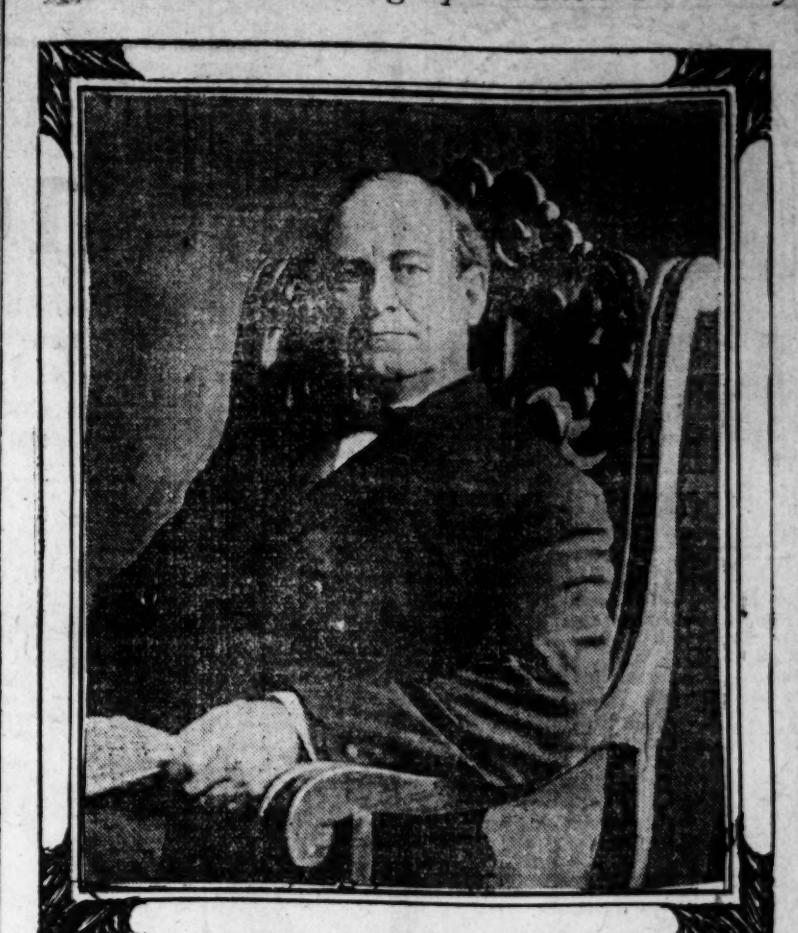

In their protest, this organization contended that certain provisions of the constitution of the United States were violated, and consequently, the board should order the book dropped.

The board at that time took the matter under consideration and asked Supt. Greenwood to advise it and certify it, if possible, if the citations to which the Daughters of the Confederacy took exception were correct.

LAWYERS, COATLESS, TRY CASE

Shirtwaists and shirtsleeves if not quite de rigueur elsewhere are accepted as proper attire in Justice O'Hallaron's court since last winter began.

A ruling has been made by the justice granting attorneys the privilege of removing their coats on hot days when arguing cases before the court. The ruling is the first of the kind ever made in St. Louis.

During the arguments in a case Wednesday, the attorneys became very warm, physically, and asked if they could not take off their coats.

Justice O'Hallaron hesitated. It was a matter for which there was no judicial precedent in Blackstone, the Magna Charta or even the revised statutes of Missouri. "Why not?" persisted one of the attorneys. "Justice is blind. What does it matter whether we have our coats on or not?" The court was convinced and the ruling was accordingly made.

POLICEMAN RESIGNS TO KILL SON-IN-LAW

Officer Berg of Waco, Tex., Acted Promptly When Told Particulars of Daughter's Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BEAUMONT, Tex., June 17.—James L. Gainer of Waco was shot to death last night by Sylvester Berg. At the inquest today Berg's wife testified that just previous to the death of their oldest daughter, who had married Gainer, the daughter had run away from her home at Waco and had come to Beaumont. She complained that her husband in a fit of insane jealousy had several times kicked her in the stomach while she was in a delicate condition. Mrs. Berg testified that she suppressed this from her husband until yesterday, but that then, brooding over the child's untimely end, she confided in him. Berg, who was a policeman, immediately telephoned his resignation to headquarters, giving as his reason that he would probably commit a murder before night. He then sought for his son-in-law, who was in Beaumont, and the tragedy followed.

SULTAN ENDANGERS PERDICARIS' LIFE

FRANCE HELD RESPONSIBLE

Governorship Is Now Demanded as Part of Condition for Release of American.

(Copyright, 1904, by the Press Publishing Co.) Special Cable to New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

TANGIER, Morocco, June 17.—An act of gross treachery to Raisuli on the part of the Sultan of Morocco is almost certain to result in the death of Perdicaris and Varley unless immediate steps are taken to counteract it.

One of Raisuli's most important demands, the one on which his personal safety wholly depends, was that the Sultan's military force hereabouts should be disbanded. This was complied with a week ago, but today new troops arrived by sea from Casablanca and landed in spite of the Moroccan protests made by the foreign diplomatic officials here, who knew nothing of their coming.

These soldiers are the very worst types of ruffians Morocco could produce, with the vilest reputations. These men are sent here ostensibly to "protect" the Europeans, who are afraid of them, as they have no discipline. Their coming is due to the unwillingness of the French government to incur the responsibility of landing troops. Apparently the French have promised the Sultan that if he can maintain order with his own troops no Frenchmen will be ordered here. The commander of the Moor force that has just arrived brings letters announcing that more Moroccan soldiers probably will arrive here soon. Two of Raisuli's followers who had been released from prison in Larache, have arrived here. This was considered another proof that the government was gradually complying with all the conditions imposed by the bandit chief for the release of his captives, when the contingent referred to was landed. It is significant that today, when the release of Perdicaris was expected in a few hours, Raisuli has increased his demands asking now for the governorship of 200 square miles of territory. The situation now is most painful in view of the dreadful danger run by the captives. Unless the Sultan's troops are withdrawn immediately, the general opinion is that Perdicaris' life is not worth purchase.

WANT "AD" IS CRAHAN'S DEFENSE

Prosecution Not Impressed With Story of Man Who Passed Bad Money at Race Track.

Developments in the case of Marcus Crahan, who was arrested June 10 with several counterfeit $100 bills in his possession, after having passed two of them on bookmakers at Delmar track, show that the day before the arrest an advertisement was inserted in a St. Louis paper stating that a package containing money had been found at Union Station.

Since the arrival of W. C. Dart of Providence, R. I., who is a friend of Crahan, the fact of the advertisement has come to light, and the advertisement is offered to prove the assertion of Crahan made at the time of his arrest that he found the bills at the station.

Several answers to the advertisement were received and investigated by men of the secret service department, who found the ticket calling for answers on Crahan when he was arrested.

"We have fully investigated the advertisement," said Col. Murphy of the secret service, "and the government is perfectly satisfied to have Crahan or his friends use the advertisement and the circumstances connected with it as evidence for the defense. In fact, you may say that if the defense does not introduce the advertisement, the government will do so as part of its case."

FOUR SISTERS IN THE INSANE ASYLUM

Fear of Dire Poverty Brings Calamity On Woman of Good Virginia Family.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RICHMOND, Va., June 17.—Four sisters, the Misses Creasy, have been received at the Western State Hospital for the Insane at Staunton. They are of a good family and natives of Campbell County, though in recent years their home has been at Lynchburg, where they made a scanty existence at quilt-making.

Miss Lizzie Creasy was adjudged insane May 1. June 2 Miss Minerva Creasy, Miss Elvira Creasy and Miss Mary Creasy were declared to be insane.

Fear of still more dire poverty is assigned as the reason of their insanity.

Advice to Women

STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL.

This is a very important consideration in a woman's correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. It is a great satisfaction to feel that one woman can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness, and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only,—a woman full of sympathy for her sick sisters, and with a knowledge of woman's ills greater than that possessed by any other person.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence thus entrusted to her, and although she publishes thousands of testimonials from women who have been benefitted by her advice and medicine, never in all her experience has she published such a letter without the full consent, and often by special request of the writer.

The reason Mrs. Pinkham is so amply qualified to give advice in cases of female ills is for the reason that about one hundred thousand cases come to her each year,—some personally, others by mail, and this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day. Twenty years of constant success—think of the knowledge thus gained. Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman of such experience, especially when it is absolutely free. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

As an illustration of the good coming from such advice we herewith publish two letters of Mrs. E. F. Hayes, the reading of which should give every sick woman confidence in Mrs. Pinkham's ability to help them. These are only two of thousands of the same kind of letters which Mrs. Pinkham has on file.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor, given in your little book accurately describes my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Roxbury), Boston, Mass.

Note the result of Mrs. Pinkham's advice—although she advised Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, to take her medicine—which she knew would help her—her letter contained a mass of additional instructions as to treatment, all of which helped to bring about the happy result.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends. Do not be persuaded that any other medicine is just as good. Any dealer who suggests something else has no interest in your case. He is seeking a larger profit. Follow the record of this medicine, and remember that the thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by "something else," but by LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND. For sale the world over.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"Your advice and the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Roxbury), Boston, Mass.

Mountains of gold could not purchase such testimony—or take the place of the health and happiness thus gained by Mrs. Hayes.

$5000 FORFEIT If we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Curious Giant Muskets of Thibet.

A BREECH-LOADING JINGAL IN ACTION.

The Thibetans' big guns, called jingals, are of two kinds, breech and muzzle loading. The breech-loader shown here is in shape and finish not unlike the huge dyke-guns used by the Scottish Highlanders at Culloden. The others are iron-hooped muzzle-loaders, made probably in imitation of bamboo. The stand of the breech-loader is fitted with prongs stuck into the ground to resist recoil. The nearest gunner is in the act of inserting the breech-piece, which contains the charge. The ball is placed in the barrel just beyond the breech. Behind the handle of the breech-piece is the vent where the match is applied. The rear of the breech-piece is kept in position by the iron wedge (shown hanging by a short chain) inserted into the horizontal slit on the side of the gun. Rough fore-sights and back-sights occur in some of the weapons. Jingals are about eight feet long and the balls weigh from one pound to three and a half pounds.

THE NEW BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

"The Constitution and Its Framers."

"Behold!" cried patient old Job a good many years ago. "My desire is that mine adversary had written a book!"

Of course the ancient poet—for that Job was a poet with bolls and other afflictions to try his spirit, nobody can deny—was too gentle to "roast" such an adversary, but it may be that Mrs. Marguerite Springer of Chicago will not be so forbearing in the case of Mrs. Nannie McCormick Coleman of that same interesting city. For Mrs. Coleman is Mrs. Springer's adversary and has just written a book, "The Constitution and Its Framers," published by the Chicago firm of Scott, Foresman & Co., wherefore, critically, Mrs. Springer has Mrs. Coleman at her mercy.

The enmity between the two Chicago women is due to a social feud of which the organization of Daughters of the American Revolution was the starting point.

Some time ago Mrs. Springer applied for admission to membership in this order and her name was rejected. She charged the humiliating circumstance to the account of Mrs. Coleman and proceeded to camp on the latter's trail, dragging out certain family skeletons in Mr. Coleman's past and striving in other ways to embarrass the wife, as fully told in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch. Doesn't it look as if the author of "The Constitution and Its Framers" is now tempting fate in publishing her book, especially since she takes occasion to dedicate it to the Daughters of the Revolution, who blackballed Mrs. Springer?

A review of Mrs. Coleman's volume by Mrs. Springer ought to make what Horace Greeley used to call "mighty interesting reading." But all this is another story.

The fact of the matter is that "The Constitution and Its Framers" is quite a creditable contribution to the history of early American times. The author has compiled a valuable book for ready reference, its theme covering the chief events leading up to the Revolution, treating concisely but satisfactorily the lives of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and giving a clear exposition of the rights of the people under the constitution's provisions. It is a somewhat unusual volume, coming from a woman, and the truth is soon made manifest that Mrs. Coleman has devoted much study and earnest literary work to its production. She has been especially happy in her review of the historic battle waged over the framing of the constitution and in her brief biographies of its framers, and also in her consideration of the tremendous significance of the epoch of which she writes. The book is one that should have a place in all American libraries as an informative historical work presented in convenient shape for frequent study. Mrs. Coleman's literary style is simple and direct and sufficiently dignified to meet the requirements of such an essay.

After all, it is difficult to see how Mrs. Springer can successfully use "The Constitution and Its Framers" as an additional weapon against Mrs. Coleman—and wouldn't it be a good thing if the little book offered excuse, instead, for a congratulatory letter and a reconciliation between the two distant descendants of Revolutionary heroes? For here is what Job says in explanation of his wish that his adversary had written a book: "Surely I would take it upon my shoulder and bind it as a crown to me. I would declare unto him the number of my steps, as a prince would I go near unto him!"

Geneva's Gift to Stanley Weyman.

Stanley Weyman chose for the scene of his last novel, "The Long Night," the city of Geneva, and thereby gained himself the eternal friendship of the people of Geneva. It is testimony to the fidelity of Mr. Weyman's story that the leading citizens of Geneva have united in presenting him with an illuminated and inscribed address and a bust of Calvin. "The Long Night" is now being translated into French for the special benefit of the people of Switzerland.

McCure-Phillips, the American publisher of "The Long Night," says that it has made a greater success than any of Mr. Weyman's previous books.

Making Mankind.

The Scribners announce for immediate publication a book by Mr. H. G. Wells which already has excited a great deal of discussion throughout England, where it has had a marked success. It is entitled "Mankind in the Making."

The ingenuity and audacity of speculation shown in the author's novels of the future are fully as characteristic of his serious philosophical thought. To his remarkable "Anticipations" of several years ago, in which he sought solutions of certain social problems, he now adds a striking and unusual book suggesting a new point of view in the consideration of human concerns. The belief that "life spans unprogressively from generation to generation" is no longer valid, and it need no longer be accepted as a fact that individual existences lead to nothing. "The amazing revelation of our days is," he says, "that they do not lead to nothing." He finds evolution and the new knowledge of hereditary development changing the whole approach to questions of human enterprise, all of which, in his belief, may be judged "from the standpoint of an attentive student of human births and development."

The World's Religions.

Two volumes of the work by Robert Shaw, A. M., published by Becktold & Co., St. Louis, under the general title of "Cosmotheologies," have been issued in the eighth and fourteenth editions, respectively. They are entitled "Sketch of the Religions of the World," and "An Inquiry Into the Origin of Christianity." Both volumes are evidently the result of wide and painstaking research, volume one dealing with the Phoenician cosmogonies, the Scandinavian mythology, the Iranian, Egyptians, Romans, Mohammedans, ancient Americans, Mormons and other branches of religious belief and practice. Incidentally, the work shows how the various religious leaders have added to actual human knowledge, by the study of the stars, plants and herbs, and by experiments in healing diseases. Many of the rites and ceremonies described are extremely curious. The evolution of the idea of God is traced from the most ancient historical period, the intention being to contrast the beliefs of early ages, as to the divinity and origin of the world, with the simple idea of monotheism which now prevails.

Volume 2 is a treatise which gives an exposition by analysis, synthesis and mutual comparison of the gospels—miracles—and the Book of Acts; wherein, though a duality in meaning may appear as to parts, a unity in security will appear as to the whole. This will doubtless be found of great value to bible students, and the author's simple style, breadth of view and avoidance of the controversial makes it helpful reading for any unprejudiced mind. A large part of the volume is made up of poems, under the title of "System for the New Age," which reveal much learning and more goodness of heart. They are not specially musical, but are full of meat for the thoughtful and sincere.

A Timely New Book.

The Century Co. will issue early in July a novel of the time of the Louisiana purchase by a new writer—a novel for which those who have read the manuscript predict a large sale. It is said that a number of distinguished historical characters figure in the story—Thomas Jefferson, Lewis and Clarke and Black Hawk among the Americans, and Napoleon, Talleyrand and Marbois across the ocean.

The book will be called "The Rose of Old St. Louis," and the author is Mrs. Mary C. Dillon of St. Louis.

"The Magna Charta of Japan," a happily timely topic, will be discussed in the July Century by Baron Kentaro Kaneko, one of the four authors of the Japanese constitution. Baron Kaneko is a Harvard A. B. and Doctor of Laws. He is a member of Japan's House of Peers and was formerly Minister of State for Agriculture and Commerce. He is in America now as the envoy of the Japanese Emperor.

Another Problem Novel.

Ivory Steele is one of several young women in "The Woman Errant" who break the home ties and enter professional or business life for the sake of matching their brains against men's, and for the sport of it. This brilliant, beautiful girl is confidential secretary to a man in high position in the professional world, and the results to him, in drawing him unconsciously away from his home, to herself, in developing her brain at the expense of her heart, and to her sweetheart, form part of the theme of this new novel by the author of "People of the Whirlpool."

Politicians are figuring on what effect Governor Cleveland's article on "The Government in the Chicago Strike of 1894," to be published in the July McClure's, will have on the Democratic national convention. Judging from advance notices it will probably only serve to make his friends more loyal and his enemies more bitter. The president's article is said to be a full and frank statement of his views on the great questions of federal authority involved in the strike, as well as a strong defense of his policy.

A SUGGESTION TO CHICAGO

From Freiburg the drainage is carried this far in a huge covered sewer. The terminus of the farm is most striking. Running as quickly as a mill race, the foul, reeking water belches into the first receiving basin, here it is passed through a wicker dam, and the coarser matter collected. When the basin becomes full with this sediment, it is cleaned out and the stuff sold to the grape growers. After this preliminary sieving, the water is led off in narrow canals through the fields. The whole space under cultivation is divided up like a great patch-work quilt, into little sections each containing about three acres. Surrounding every division is a dyke about two feet high. When a field is flooded, the sewage water is run in up to this depth and allowed to stand. In 24 hours it filters through the soil to the depth of about five feet where unglazed drain tiles are placed. These carry the water, now no longer dirty and ill-smelling, but pure and clear, into large ditches which eventually empty in the Rhine. After one has once passed through the rather unsavory entrance, a walk through the sewage farm is very attractive. The separate fields appear fertile and well kept and although it was winter when we were there, the meadows were green. Quantities of pheasants crossed the road and sleek and well-fed looking crows croaked their approval of the city's policy. An idea of how pure the water is after it has drained through the fields can be gathered from the fact that the larger ditches are full of fish, even trout being found in season.

There is no objectionable smell at all, and although there are fifty men with their families on the place, cases of sickness are rare, and none of these can be traced to the influence of the sewage. The laborer's houses are tasty and well constructed, and through the trees look very picturesque.

When the question of the success of the sewage farms is discussed, it must be borne in mind what the motives of the town council were in establishing it. Their primary idea was to purify the sewage water and so save the Rhine from pollution. In this, they have already completely succeeded. The outlet from the farm is now a blessing rather than a curse. The pasture land around the neighboring village of Waltershofen, that was formerly almost worthless, is now most productive. As to the revenue producing possibilities of the undertaking, as yet, the interest on the capital invested is not met by the yearly return. The principal reason for this, however, is the newness of everything.
